

Over 60 Regional Organizations Were Represented at SoGreen Network's Summit - 2011

SoGreen Network is taking the steps to create a “Southeastern Regional Coalition” of grassroots organizations, agriculturalists, forest practitioners, environmentalists, and 1890 land grant institutions to address environmental issues.

This year's Summit was hosted on the campus of Florida A&M University.

“This is forward thinking on a topic that is somewhat below the radar. These issues are real important topics, and it is beyond the curve. The Summit brought together the right mix of people...”

- Dr. Richard Gregg, Chair of the FAMU Environment & Sustainability Council, Florida

“I came to the SoGreen Summit because of its theme "Embracing Our Traditions of Partnership." I was accompanied to the Summit by four elementary school teachers from Dekalb Academy of Technology & Environment aka D.A.T.E. We not only found partners for our Urban Agriculture & Aquaponics Center, but we found new friends.”

- Dr. Michelle Thomas, G Food 4U, LLC, Washington, DC

"The SoGreen Network Summit raised awareness on the importance of promoting green energy, ensuring sustainable living and job creation in a changing economy."

– Rep. Alan Williams, Florida State Representative District 8

“I was truly honored to have been a part of this historical, educational and inspirational gathering. The summit touched on many facets of environmental thought and thus appealed to a cross section of the African American community including farmers, teachers, scientists, students, activists and politicians. The event belied the myth that people of color are too busy or too apathetic to seriously consider environmental matters...”

– Dr. Owusu Bandele, Southern University-Baton Rouge (Professor Emeritus), Louisiana
